FOOD GRAINS

Food grains like Wheat, Rice, Maize and lentils form the foundation of many diets worldwide, providing essential nutrients and energy.

Wheat and rice, two of the most widely consumed grains, are major sources of carbohydrates and protein, while maize also offers valuable starch and some protein. Lentils, while technically a legume, are often grouped with grains due to their similar role in providing sustenance and nutrients, particularly protein and fiber. Cumin, though a spice, can be considered a grain relative due to its origin from a flowering plant.

These grains, when combined with other food groups like vegetables and proteins, contribute to a balanced and nutritious diet. CSR Trading LTD, import this food item fromvarious country and source to meet Bangladeshi Nation food requirement. We are committed to provide best quality food products. CSR also maintain food quality and reasonable price. Over the years, CSR becomes a trusted source of food grains in Bangladesh.
